

Watto's Chance Cube Official Tournament Guide

Official Rules and Card List for standard-format Watto's Chance Cube tournaments.

<http://www.starwarsccg.org/cube/>

Revised 10/2018.

Special thanks to Kevbozzz, Advocate, imrahil327, and CT for their work in compiling the Reset Cube!

I. INTRODUCTION and RULES

Watto's Chance Cube is a way to simulate sealed deck play, but with more familiar and powerful cards than a typical sealed deck experience would offer. The same set of cards are used to compromise the draft pool and players also receive a set of 10 "fixed" cards to ensure their decks can be playable. Players then draft from that set card pool (called "the Cube") instead of the usual sealed product; so rather than getting obscure aliens from Jabba's Palace or unusable interrupts from A New Hope that sealed drafts typically offer, players are drafting from a card pool that contains Darth Maul, Mara Jade, and other usable cards to create a more balanced and enjoyable experience. The current card list that makes up the cube is below.

So, instead of constructing a deck from randomized packs, the decks are constructed using familiar (and often times more useful) cards contained within the Cube. Players do not need to bring any cards to these events, as they will build their deck from the Cube brought by the Tournament Director. The process for drafting cards is below.

More information can be found in this forum, or by visiting <http://www.starwarsccq.org/cube/>.

Presently, the Cube features the following:

- Total draft cards: 390 per side.
- Total fixed cards: 10 per side, six copies of each, 60 total
- Full cube total cards: 450 per side.

Additionally, the present version of Watto's Chance Cube features standard virtual cards (no legacy virtual cards).

II. DRAFTING

First and foremost, players are randomly assigned a side of the Force to play (with each side having an equal number of players). They are then given a set pack of 10 "fixed" cards (listed below). Each player on that side of the Force will receive the same exact 10 cards (so you will need one set of 10 fixed cards for each player to have). Players then set those fixed cards off to the side and begin the drafting process, knowing that at the end of the draft they will be constructing their decks from their drafted cards and also their 10 fixed cards.

Drafting typically goes like this:

Let's say, for sake of simplicity, that there are 10 total players in the cube event. The 10 players will be split into groups of 5, with one group drafting Light Side and one group Dark Side. Each player is given the corresponding set of 10 'Fixed Cards' that apply to their specific allegiance

The drafting cards are all compiled together and are shuffled up and randomized, then (face-down) divided up into 6 'packs' of 9 cards each will be placed in front of each player. Every player takes a card from their first 'pack' and then passes the pack to their left. This continues until all of cards in that pack are gone.

This process repeats, but now passing in the opposite direction, and so on, until all packs have been distributed and all of the cards have been drafted.

Deck Building– After the sealed product exchange or booster draft is complete, players are given 10 minutes to construct their 45-card decks. Every player will now have drafted 54 cards. Using these 54 cards and the 10 fixed cards (for a total of 64 cards), each player then creates a 45-card deck. The remaining cards are a sideboard and you can swap cards in and out of your deck between games.

Re-customization - No other cards may be added to a player's deck from outside the tournament or from trading between players during the tournament, but a player may re-customize their deck between games with cards from the original stock of sealed cards.

After playing 2 games with the deck, repeat the process with the opposite side of the Force.
